Why Matty Mac

Quality:

As an audio engineer with high level equipment, I am able to deliver studio like quality in a live atmosphere. By implementing wireless audio control, I can hear exactly what I will sound like as I walk the venue proving I am the only solo acoustic act in the area that brings a professional sound engineer.

Quantity:

As a top level entertainer, I do my absolute best to follow the golden rule, "No dead air". There is nothing worse than an act that pauses for 30 seconds after every song to take a drink or fumble through lyrics to get to the next song. That is why I play my sets like a DJ. I improvise song transitions on the fly to ensure that my sets are 45-50 minutes of straight music. This continuous style can add up and result in an extra 10-15 songs per show as compared to other acts.

Song Catalog:

With close to 200 songs in my catalog, I can accommodate any crowd. Whether there are some audience members over 70 or under 10, I have a song for everyone. I do not choose a set list ahead of time and show up to play only those songs. I break my catalog into large chunks and pick my set list live at the venue based on the demographic I am playing for. By gauging the crowd's reaction, I can see which styles, genres, or decades to choose songs from which results in a much more pleasant experience for the audience.

Solo Artist with Duo Capabilities:

The main advantage of a duo act is that there is an extra person there to sing backup vocals, play an iconic bass line, or provide a guitar solo. With the use of my loop pedal, I am able to do all of that as a solo artist in a much more impressive fashion. I have recently added a trumpet and electric drum set to my live performance for venues that may be looking for a more full band sound.

Personality, Appearance, and Professionalism:

I never perform under the influence of anything. This is my job and I treat it as such. I am young, presentable and passionate about my work. I take pride in putting on a good show, pleasing the audience, and making personal connections.
